BOROUGH WILL BE THE LOSER; PAVING LIENS WERE NOT FILED.

Outstanding Money for Some Street Improvements That Has Been Done Not in Shape for Collection.

THE BOROUGH ENGINEERS TALK.

In Many Instances They Failed to Notify Borough Solicitors When Contractors Had Finished Their Work—Attorney W. H. Brown Talks.

Out of the $11,518.43 due the borough for street paving, the borough will undoubtedly lose several thousand dollars, due to the fact that liens have not been filed against the properties. When asked regarding these liens this morning, Borough Solicitor W. H. Brown said: "Yes, it is a fact that the borough will in all likelihood lose some money on its street paving on account of the town's inability to collect it. How much, that is impossible to say. In the two years that we have been borough attorneys we have filed liens against every property holder where street paving has been done, with one exception, that of Market alley. Here we have a contract with the property owners and this is collectible."

"There is outstanding money on East Fayette street, and I do not believe liens have been filed upon the properties," Peach street and Fayette street were paved before we were Borough Attorneys, also Pittsburgh street where there is a big amount of work. With every petition now filed a certificate is drawn and the petitioners sign it. As soon as the petition is granted for the paving of the street the parties, or property holders, are bound by contract and it is impossible for them to escape paying for the work, a lien not being necessary."

"Where a property holder transfers his property and makes a deed for it to some one else and there is no lien the only possible chance of collection is to look to the individual. The purchaser of the property cannot be compelled to pay for the paving. The individual may, in my opinion, be held liable for the amount, although it would probably be a case for the courts to decide."

"The audit just completed by the auditors, this year for the first time, gives the residents of Connellsville an opportunity to learn just exactly what is owing by individuals upon the streets. The itemized form goes into it very thoroughly and will be interesting to the taxpayers of the borough."

COL. PEART TALKED

Salvation Army Officer Addressed a Large Audience at Presbyterian Church Sunday Morning.

Col. Peart of New York, National Secretary of the Salvation Army, spoke in the Presbyterian church yesterday morning to a large and deeply interested congregation. The Colonel has spent 22 years in the work, chiefly in London and Melbourne, Australia. He related many incidents connected with the remarkable growth of the Salvation Army and described some of the methods and objects of the work.

Col. Peart is second in command of the army in the United States, and has been engaged in the work of the organization for 25 years, coming to this country two years ago from Australia, where he was in command of the army.

Members of the Salvation Army occupied the pulpits of the other Protestant churches in town at the morning services.

Officers Charged With Murder.
Sergeant Anthony Lohmiller and Private L. H. Andrews of the State Constabulary were arrested yesterday near Honesdale. They were later released in $2,000 bail each for their appearance at the inquest into the shooting of Robert Carr, a negro, during a raid on a crap game in Blandin township, Allegheny county, Saturday night.

SOCIALIST SPOKE.

Allegheny County Organizer Discussed
Subject of "Undesirable Citizens."

At a socialistic meeting held in Russell's hall Sunday evening which was well attended, Fred L. Schwartz, Socialist organizer of Allegheny county, discussed at length the subject of "Undesirable Citizens." The Haywood trial at Boise, Idaho, came in for considerable attention while President Roosevelt was severely criticized for the stand he has taken in the matter.

This is the second time Mr. Schwartz has been heard here. He spoke at a meeting of the telephone strikers a few months ago. He is an interesting and entertaining talker.

BUTLER TODAY.

Soap Mine Outfit Here With Big
Claims of What They Will Do
This Afternoon.

With the premeditated intention of again wallowing the Connellsville mine, Butler arrived in town on No. 6 this morning. Manager Alex. J. Lawson of the Butler team, came with the boys and spent the better part of this morning telling Manager McIntire what his team expects to do today and tomorrow. As Umpire Culligan is still in town and will probably umpire, it's hard to tell what might happen. Culligan certainly handed the home team an awful deal Saturday and with the President of the League, who gave him a job, on the manager's bench for Butler, his decisions may be to the bad again today.

The local boys are feeling fine. A few more days of hot weather and they will strike a gate that none of the teams can stop. They fully expect to wallop Butler and get sweet revenge for last week's two defeats. Lawson says they can't do it, but there may be another story to tell.

This is last day and all the fair six will be admitted free. The attendance will undoubtedly be large for there is as much rivalry between Connellsville and Butler as there is between Connellsville and Uniontown.

WEREN'T BOTHERED.

Sabbatarians, Contrary to Expectations, Didn't Bother Connellsville on Sunday.

It was another false alarm. The Uniontown Sabbatarians, confident in their efforts to enforce the Sunday closing law in Uniontown, that kept them pretty busy. The Connellsville merchants were not molested, although prosecutions were expected. Sunday in town was very quiet. People were out in force, being unable to restrain the persuasive influence of Old Sol. The street cars were jammed with pleasure seekers while automobiles, buggies and Shanks' mares were brought in to service.

MORTGAGE RECORDED.

To Cover Contingent Expenses for Big Bond Issue.

UNIONTOWN, May 13.—A mortgage was filed here this morning by the Union Telephone Company in favor of the Fidelity Title & Trust Company of Pittsburgh. The mortgage is for the nominal sum of $1, but is to cover the contingent expenses of a $25,000,000 bond issue.

The Union Telephone Company is made up of a number of independent companies in the central part of this State, among them being the Cumberland Valley and United Telephone & Telegraph Company. In order to perfect the combination the Union company decided upon the big bond issue.

SCHLINGER DEAD.

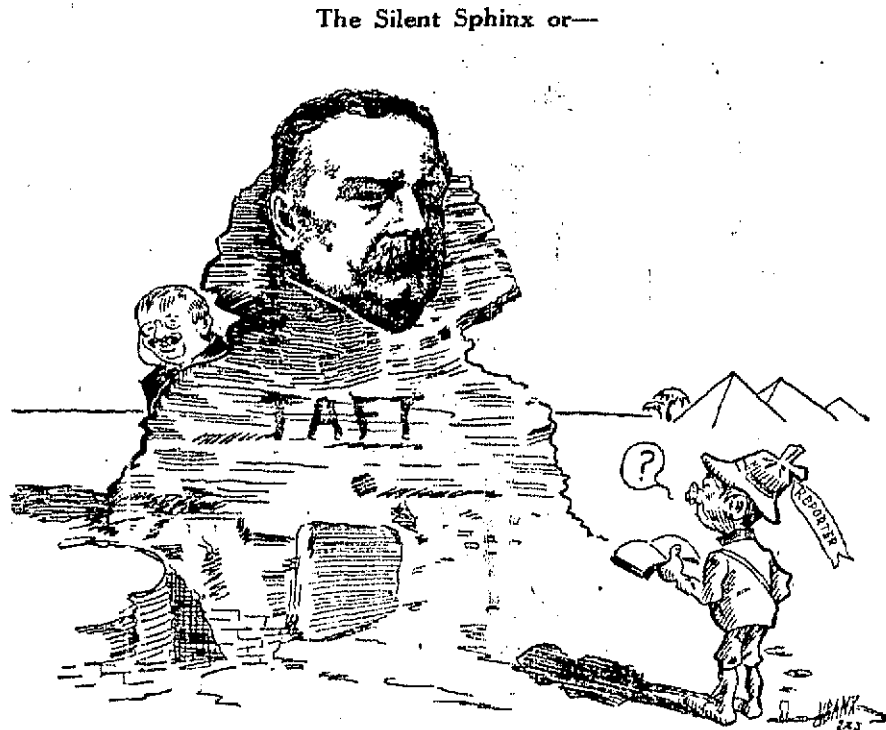

Boy Run Over by Train Did Not Recover from Shock.

As the result of jumping on a freight train Peter Schlinger of Morgantown, one of the boys who were run over by a freight train shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon died Saturday night at midnight at the Cottage State Hospital. His left leg was amputated above the left knee.

The lad was 10 years old. The body was removed to his home at Morgantown.

Prisoner in Distress.

"Please go to John Row and tell him I am in the lockup. Plaster you know me." This is the text of a note thrown from the borough jail by a prisoner in distress this morning.

PAID FINES.

Fifteen Uniontown Merchants Went
Before Squire Boyle Shortly
After Midnight.

UNIONTOWN, May 13.—Sunday night is beginning to mean a long vigil for many officers of the law and ministers of the gospel. With the Sunday closing campaign, waged by members of the cloth, being met by some opposition on the part of the merchants, the former have to keep on the alert. Thus, they get very little rest after the Sunday evening services. Even Squire Boyle is beginning to show signs of the strain which he has been under, getting out at midnight and preparing papers.

Early this morning, as on previous occasions, Revs. J. S. A. Leland and J. D. Gold were on hand at Squire Boyle's office, but on this occasion their number was augmented by Rev. Scott Bowman. In all 15 informations were sworn to, the defendants being Charles Boulos, Joe Boulos, Steve Soltriss, Mikos Marquis, H. Viozto, A. H. Kohlen, George Davis, Joe Thomas, L. L. Crawford, Jones & Taylor, Russell Thompson, Phil Johns, Bert Neighbors and Harry Beeson. Later in the day, at a more reasonable hour, the defendants all appeared and paid their fines. They told Squire Boyle to look for them next Sunday.

On the face of things the movement appears to be losing ground here. Several weeks ago practically all the stores except that of Boulos were closed, but now all of them are open. The business done on Sunday netted more than enough to pay the fines and then some.

RUSHING BUSINESS.

Done by the One Lone Car of the Fair-chance & Smithfield Company on Sunday.

UNIONTOWN, Business was rushing over the two and a quarter miles of track being operated between Fairchance and York Run by the Fairchance & Smithfield Traction Company. The one car now in commission makes a round trip in 20 minutes. The two conductors who had the run yesterday are nursing sore runs this morning as the result of ringing up fares. The operating force of the road is composed of former West Penn employees, some of them who were veterans in the service. Conductor Blackett and Motorman Lloyd Shanabarger work one shift, while Conductor Dale Able and Motorman Jefferson Smiley run the other.

Was Burned.

WHEELING, May 13.—[Special.]—One warehouse containing a large quantity of expanded metal and finished tin plate and an adjoining expanded tin mill of the Aetna Standard Mills of the United States Steel Corporation at Bridgeport, O., was destroyed by fire early this morning. The Wheeling fire department responded to the call.

THE TWO GIRLS GOT DRUNK AGAIN.

Arrested for Fast Driving, Ella Burns and Mary Strawn
Do Time Sunday.

FRIEND COMES TO THE RESCUE

And Pays $15 to Get Them Out—One Prisoner Not Drunk but Merely "Boozed"—Young Men Fined for Disorderly Conduct.

A busy session of police court was held Sunday morning before Burgess Solson. Only a few drunks were in for sentence but they kept that official busy for nearly an hour. The star prisoners were Ella Burns and Mary Strawn, two women of town who were pulled in Saturday night for being drunk and disorderly and driving in a reckless manner. They presented a bedraggled spectacle when halted before the Burgess and were fined $7.50 each with the alternate of 10 days in jail. They took the 10 days. All Sunday they kept Chief Reither in a stew by their actions. Several gentlemen, friends authorized outside the cell windows and "kept company" with the prisoners. Some one in the crowd sneaked in a whiskey bottle and the girls proceeded to get full again. It was shortly after this that the Chief happened around. The girls were making so much noise that he looked them up in cells again, instead of giving them the freedom of the corridor. Towards evening a friend appeared and paid the $15 fine. They were then released.

Jake Prescock, a foreigner from Abington, almost took the breath away from Burgess Solson when he denied being drunk.

"I merely 'boozed,'" he said. "Had I been drunk I might have gotten killed."

Jake was told that the fine for getting "boozed" was the same as for drunkenness, so he took 48 hours. Three young men were arrested in front of Maple Land, on North Pittsburgh street Saturday night for being drunk and disorderly. They were fined $7.50 each and managed to pull the money later in the day.

Mike Sock of Adelaide got 48 hours for being drunk while Mike Suncior of Leipspring No. 3 took 72 hours for being drunk and swearing.

This morning Richard Nichols, pleaded up as a suspicious character, was held for further investigation. He said he came here from Homestead to get work at Silgo. If any men are needed at the mill Richard will be permitted to go to work.

Joseph Armstrong of town drew 48 hours for being drunk. Joseph was one of the several men who interviewed the female prisoners part of the day Sunday.

A special meeting of Town Council will be held tomorrow evening for the transaction of general business. The regular meeting last week was not held because the circus was in town.

Sunday School Convention.
The County Sunday School Convention of the Baptist Church will be held June 4 and 5 in Uniontown.

STATE DELEGATES.

Will Be No Opposition on Either the Republican or the Democratic Side.

There will be no opposition for delegates to the Republican State Convention which meets at Harrisburg on June 4. Nomination papers were filed on Friday morning. The delegates will be J. V. Thompson, John R. Byrne, B. F. Boyle, Wm. J. Callaghan from No. 2 district, and Newton Newcomer of Redstone township from No. 1 district.

The signers to the petitions are J. V. Thompson, Logan Rush, C. H. Sutton, Otto Powell, James C. Wiley, John R. Byrne, Charles T. Cramer, J. C. Work, S. R. Shelby, W. E. Crow and Wallace Miller, all of Uniontown. The petitions for each delegate bore the same signatures. A petition circulated in Connellsville for Mr. Boyle by a well known local Republican was returned today owing to the fact that Mr. Boyle's petition had already been filed with those of the other delegates with the signatures given above. This petition was sent in on Friday evening.

The delegates to the Democratic State Convention will be John M. Core, Solomon G. Miller, Robert A. Kline, W. H. Highberger and W. H. Brown. There was no opposition for election.

TOO PERSISTENT

Was This One-Legged Man Who Wanted to Make a Match for His Brother Today.

Too much persistence in matchmaking resulted in a one-legged man who continually refused to give his name, being arrested shortly after noon today by Officer Logan Mitts. The charge of harassing a woman and disorderly conduct was lodged against him. It appears that the woman was the widow of one Michael Colligan, who departed this life some months ago by lying down in front of a B. & O. freight train near Layton.

The crippled man is determined that she marry his brother and followed her about town the better part of the morning. She was not impressed with his matrimonial ideas and says her first venture was enough to last for a while. When he became too annoying Officer Mitts appeared on the scene.

for Personal Injuries.

UNIONTOWN, May 13.—John Brjja has entered suit against the Pennsylvania railroad to recover $20,000 for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained in a wreck on that road March 28, this year.

Brjja says he purchased a ticket for Greensburg at Latrobe. The train on which he made the trip was wrecked and several persons were injured. Brjja says he sustained serious bruising, a fractured leg, scalp wound and other hurts. Negligence on the part of employees is alleged.

The large organization of the Sunday school with a membership of 625 in its various departments, was favorably commented on. The report of the church treasurer, B. F. Boyle, showed a $4,100.43 surplus through his hands during the year, $250 of which amount had been for benevolence.

The pastor, E. R. Burgess, was given an increase of $300 a year in his salary to take effect June 1. John Kock, E. R. Floto, R. O. Claybaugh, Samuel Baisley and A. S. Silcox were elected to official positions in the church.

BIG EXCURSION

Went to Fairmont Sunday to See Ball Game With Greensburg on Special Train.

The game between Greensburg and Fairmont at the latter place drew an enormous crowd from this section. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad ran a special excursion from here Sunday morning which carried over 600 people to the game. The attendance at Fairmont was 2,500.

The crowd was orderly going over but coming back some bad characters aboard started trouble. The train, it is said, stopped at every other station to put someone off. Six men were deposited at Morgantown. A good proportion of the crowd was from Greensburg. It was after 11 o'clock when the train got in. Cars were held to carry the crowd over to Greensburg.

DECEASED'S SON THE TARGET.

Shot Was Fired from His House, Occupied Only by His Wife at the Time, and Quarrel Between Them Believed to Be the Cause—No Arrests Yet.

FAIRCHANCE, May 13.—A sensation was created here Sunday afternoon at the funeral of Mrs. Thomas Hastings when, while the procession was on its way to the cemetery, a shot was fired from the home of Daniel Hastings, a son of the dead woman. The shot created a panic among the occupants of cabs and carriages in the line. While several men stood guard about the house others ran for an officer. The house was searched but Mrs. Hastings was its sole occupant. Her husband attended the funeral but she remained at home. The shot came, it is said, from a window of the house, and the general belief is that Daniel Hastings was the target. The shot, fortunately, went wild.

It is said that Hastings and his wife had a quarrel before the funeral which resulted in the latter remaining at home. Mrs. Hastings denied that the shot was fired from her home. Officers are conducting an investigation but so far no arrests in connection with the matter have been made.

AN ERUPTION

Is Predicted at Mt. Aetna by American Scientists.

ROME, May 13.—[Special.]—An extraordinary eruption of Mount Aetna is predicted by the American scientist, Frank A. Perrot, as a result of personal observations recently completed, and residents of the vicinity have been thrown into a panic by his announcement. Already the volcano, which has been in eruption some time, is increasing in activity and hundreds of people have fled beyond the danger zone and many others are panicking to leave. Gun damage has already been caused by a heavy fall of ashes and clanders and flows of lava.

This is one of the Pennsylvania's finest trains and requires careful handling on the part of the engineer. It is considered quite an honor to be chosen for such a run.

FRANK O'CONNOR GETS APPOINTMENT.

Second Ward Young Man Goes to Register and Recorder's Office.

HAS WORKED HIS OWN WAY UP

Under Trying Circumstances After He Had Met With Accident That Resulted in Loss of Both Legs—Leaves B. & O. May 15.

From The Sunday Courier

Frank O'Connor, who has been a clerk in the office of Master Mechanic E. J. Harrigan of the Connellville division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, has resigned his position to accept an appointment as clerk in the office of Register and Recorder in the court house at Uniontown. He leaves the B. & O. with regret, but the advancement is a nice one. For three years he has been in the Master Mechanic's office and prior to that he held a clerkship in the Car Distributor's office in the Hyndman building.

Frank O'Connor is a splendid example of what a young man with a firm will and constitution and natural ability can accomplish. Something over six years ago Frank, then not 20 years old, was a fireman on the Connellville division of the B. & O., having a regular run with J. S. Durr. One night he made an extra trip to Cumberland, doubling out after his regular run. Coming home a week occurred some distance this side of Indian Creek. It was a head-on collision. O'Connor was pinned in the wreckage and his legs were literally burned and crushed off. For over two hours he was held in the wreckage while the debris was removed from around him. Never once did he make an outcry. He showed then the pluck and courage which has since characterized his life. For many weeks and months he lay in the Cottage Hospital. When he came out he had made up his mind to get a better education than he had and prepare himself for a business career. He entered the Connellville public schools and later secured a scholarship in Douglas College, from which he graduated with high honors.

Since then he has held a clerical position with the B. & O. and his record for competency has been one he can be proud of. His appointment to a clerkship in the Register and Recorder's office which is effective on May 15, comes as recognition of the boy's ability and his perseverance in reaching the position he has under trying circumstances.

Frank O'Connor is at present Master of Youngheys Lodge No. 595, B. of L. E. & C. He is also State Legislative Representative of the lodge, and has twice been delegate of the lodge to the Firemen's National Conventions at Chattanooga, Tenn., in 1902, and at Buffalo in 1904. At the February election he was elected a member of the Connellville School Board from the Second Ward. The congratulations of a host of friends go with him to his new work.

BASE BALL

Still in the lead.

Butler today

And tomorrow

Beaver Falls comes next. The Beavers are strong.

Manager Anderson's Red Sox got bumped at Fairmont, but Scottsdale took a fall out of Clarksburg.

That's a pretty race between Fairmont, Clarksburg, Scottsdale and Greensburg. They swap positions regularly.

Nugent, Greensburg's new captain, is playing a nice game at short for the Red Sox.

Busy week ahead. Games every day. The locals play at home until Saturday, when they go to Clarksburg. Six victories would lock good.

A movement is on foot in the West Penn to raise the salary limit from $500 to $1,000 a month but it is being vigorously opposed by President Alex. J. Lawson. With the exception of one or two towns every one in the circuit could stand the raise without being hurt. It's a dead sea thing that at the limit will be raised next year. If not this, any movement to strengthen the league and put it on a more substantial basis, deserves support. Perhaps if Lawson hadn't selected a dud town for his own team he wouldn't oppose the movement so strongly.

Unless more care is taken in the preparation of the West Penn standing by papers in and out of the circuit we predict there will be trouble before the season is out. It is with a little pride that we point to the fact that, since the season opened, The Courier has printed the correct standing each day. This is more than can be said of any other paper of the circled. From the first day some sporting writers have been wrong-shifted on this point giving both Clarksburg and Beaver Falls credit for playing a game which was never pulled off. The papers in President Lawson's own town, Butler, have been in the wrong on this matter and several days ago had Butler ahead of Beaver Falls. In this office the games of each day are being filed so that, in case of a dispute over this matter, we will be able to support our contention in the matter. The standing printed in the various Pittsburgh papers is very confusing. One day it is right and the next day all wrong again.

It has been reported on various occasions that Butler and Beaver Falls are being dropped from the West Penn circuit. Both towns are represented by strong teams and there is no reason for this action if attendance keeps up. So far, however, neither town has been doing much in this line and the traveling expenses there create a drain on the treasuries of various teams.

To date none of the official scores of the West Penn have received a cent for their services, although they are allowed $1 a game by the league. Neither have they been furnished blanks on which to make out the score. Some of the scorers are a farce. One or two who have been appointed, and possibly more, do not know the first principles of scoring while one man was given the job who didn't know a foul strike from a home run. With such a system team members may expect almost anything when the halting averages are given out, if that time ever comes.

Wonder what the other two umpires are like? Johnson and Culligan have worked here. Johnson's work was entirely satisfactory to the local fans but it is said that he is inclined to favor the home club to keep the roots with him. Culligan was a farce. His apparently determined attitude to give Connellville the worst of it in which he succeeded very well, left an unsavory impression of his work. One thing about Culligan which is to be admired is his absolute independence. He didn't mind a bit what the crowd said of him, and that was a plenty, but at the same time his work didn't improve. That a league umpire should manifest such partiality leaves a bad impression. Why did Culligan favor Clarksburg?

Melsenberger the former Somerset backstop, has been turned loose by Butler. He made a big hit with the Soap Mine fans. Wonder if Lawson feared he would be dimmed by the limelight turned on the gray haired catcher?

Butler's ambition to win the championship received a setback Saturday when the Beavers lammed Lawson's pets for a clean victory. Wait until the Soap Mine bunch strike Greensburg, Scottsdale and Latrobe, to say nothing of Connellville. An awakening will come.

Fairmont has been unfortunate in the selection of a team. The Galaxy deserve to make a better showing. Clarksburg has the strongest aggregation and present indications are that they will end up ahead of President Tom Raymond's bunch. The Fairmont magnates are fine fellows and we would like to see them get a team down there that will be a winner.

That West Penn schedule isn't setting the world on fire. It's poorly arranged. The same teams opposing each other on all three holidays looks bad. It's also a mistake to send a team off on a long jump for only four games.

IMMIGRATION.

New High Water Marks for the Influx from Europe.

NEW YORK, May 12.—[Special.]—The flooding tide of immigration to American shores runs ceaselessly on and now high water marks for the influx of Europe's migratory hordes are being recorded every month in the port of New York. Already the month of May bids fair to far outstrip the April record when 134,152 immigrants poured through the gateway of New York into the country. Five transatlantic liners brought in over 5,000 immigrants yesterday and of officials at Ellis Island say that there are no signs of cessation of this European invasion.

The well springs of this human stream lie principally in Southern and Middle Europe, while another lesser current has its source in Scandinavia and Germany. Italy, Austria, Hungary and Lower Russia now supply more than one-half of all the immigrants seeking homes in this country. Every fourth alien examined at Ellis Island is an Italian, while every fifth newcomer is from Austria. A score of years ago the headwaters of foreign immigration were in Ireland and Germany. But now the source is entirely changed.

The industrial fields of the United States still absorb the greatest part of the foreign output and seven States, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio find homes for 70 per cent of the total number. Efforts to deflect this stream to agricultural channels have been largely futile. The movement is urban and towards the industries and not to agriculture.

Letter to Councilman Dean, Connellville, Pa.

Dear Sir: Paint goes by gallons. There are useful and harmful gallons. Useful paint is lead-zinc-indol with dryer and color, useless paint is whitening, china-clay, ground stone, barytes, benzine, or water.

This stuff is put in, because it is cheap, to stuff-out the paint, to make more gallons to sell; of course, the buyer doesn't suspect, or he wouldn't buy it.

It costs as much to brush-on this useless stuff as lead-zinc and oil but it looks like that and feels like that in the brush; the painter doesn't suspect it. Besides, if the owner is willing, why should the painter object to painting two gallons for one? He is paid by the day, more gallons, more days, more money.

Average painter at full price is about one-third this useless stuff; and average paint at $1.25 or $1.50 or $1.75 a gallon is two-thirds trash. Fool paint is the proper name for all but pure paint. It is made to fool people with. Knave paint is another good name. It is made, of course, by knaves. Sick paint is a name for an honest work paint. They are all weak and all extravagant; too many gallons to buy and too many gallons to brush-on. Devote is the standard.

You, only.

WANT BIG DAMAGES?

Claim That P. R. R. Has Been Playing Favorites.

Damages to the amount of $127,855 have been inflicted on the Hillside Coal & Coke Company of Indiana county by the Pennsylvania railroad, according to a complaint filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission Saturday.

The damages complained of have been inflicted since the first day of October, 1903 through the failure of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to furnish it sufficient cars to transport its coal to interstate markets.

The Hillside company also alleges that the railroad company has discriminated in favor of D. E. Williams & Company and the Keystone Coal & Coke Company.

SHERIFF KIEFER AND POSSE MAKE A SUCCESSFUL RAID AT REPUBLIC.

Three Negro Gamblers of Pittsburg Captured and Five Women of Bad Reputation Driven Out.

RIOTOUS TIME WAS PLANNED

Pay Day at the Big Coke Works Was to Be Made a Disorderly Affair.
Two Speakeasy Men Got Word of Officers' Coming and Made Good
Their Escape.

From The Sunday Courier.
UNIONTOWN, May 11.—The county authorities rounded up a gang tonight that had prepared to have a wild time at Republic tonight and Sunday. Some escaped the dragnet but the officers were able to catch three and they were tonight lodged in the County Jail. They are J. W. Moore, Joseph Wyatt and Garfield Garner, Pittsburg negroes who have a reputation for gambling. When searched these men all had dice up on their persons, some of them being loaded, and the inference is that they came to the Republic works with the intention of feeding the unwary. Five women who also came along with them were ordered from the neighborhood and the officers saw that they went to Pittsburg. They are Mamie Wares, Jennie Johnson, Susie Bates, Mamie Smith and Ella Wapfield.

That a riotous Sunday was planned to take place at Republic Works is an assured fact. The coke company's regular pay day occurred yesterday and all along the river it was hoisted about that there would be "something doing" at Republic. The officers heard of this rumor and in the afternoon Sheriff M. A. Kiefer, County Detective Alex. McBeth, Deputy Sheriff S. E. Decker and Constable Bowie started for the place. Somehow or other, a part of the gang that intended stopping over at Republic for Sunday and Monday got wind of the proposed raid and left before the officers could arrive. In the bunch were two proprietors of speakeasies at houses No. 81 and 52. The officers have had these houses under surveillance for several weeks, but have not had enough evidence to convict the proprietors. They are both operated by colored men.

Yesterday afternoon they hoped to catch the culprits red-handed and, in taking the gamblers and women of ill repute, also take the speakeasy men. When they entered the houses yesterday they found them vacant, but there was plenty of evidence that a big business had been conducted in them. It is believed that a big consignment of intoxicants was stopped on the way when the rumor spread that the officers were coming. Where the speakeasy men went to is a mystery.

The officers placed under arrest five negroes, but two of them, giving good accounts of themselves, were dismissed, and only three of them were placed in the County Jail. The three arrested have bad reputations. The women were not caught in any criminal act and were told to leave immediately, which they were glad to do. Since the opening up of the boating season on the Monongahela river, the entire Monongahela valley has become peopled with bad characters from Pittsburg and other districts. There are hundreds of strange negroes in the great Klondyke coke territory and more are arriving each day. The great demand for labor is one of the causes of the bad element that now exists there. Many of those who come to the territory leech off their working companions and on pay days they rob them of their earnings by gambling. The officers have been most active in their efforts to suppress this lawlessness, but the territory being hard to reach, their coming frequently precedes them and those whom they make an effort to catch escape. It is becoming a great custom for many women of unsavory reputation to frequent the coke towns along the river each Saturday night, thereby taking in much of the hard-earned money of the coke and coal workers.

Interesting Statistics.
According to a table just issued by the Ball Telephone Company, Uniontown figures among the leading towns as far as the number of phones is concerned.

The table is fixed at the ratio of phones per 100 population: Pittsburg, with a population of 611,696, has 5.9 per cent. per population, while Uniontown with a population of 14,947, has 11.7 per cent. per population. D. J. Murphy, Division Superintendent, and Clarence Gibson, District Superintendent, are much gratified over the success of the company in this district.

Be Married a Few Minutes
After Midnight.

NEW YORK, May 13.—In the "royal suite" on the third floor of the Hotel Gotham tonight William Ellis Corey, President of the United States Steel Corporation, and Miss Mabelle Gilman, the actress, will be married. So far as could be learned the ceremony will take place at 10 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made to serve a banquet in the apartments of the bride at 11.30 o'clock. Miss Gilman says the members of Corey's family will be present. At midnight the bride and bridegroom will leave the hotel and go to the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II, on which Corey has engaged the captain's suite, thus assuring quiet and freedom from annoyance.

There is much speculation as to who the officiating clergyman will be. It was said at the Hotel Gotham tonight that a civil magistrate might be called in to perform the ceremony. The third floor of the hotel, on which Miss Gilman and her mother have a suite, is guarded by detectives night and day for fear some venturesome person might attempt to break in upon the privacy of the actress.

FINAL RUSH BEGINS.

Legislature Grapples With Many Important Subjects During Closing Week.

SENATE HOLDS UP MANY BILLS

Several So-Called "Party Plodge" Measures Accumulate Dust in Capetown Pigeon Holes in the Senate Chamber.

Harrisburg, May 13.—Much legislation of general interest will be discussed before the final adjournment of the Pennsylvania legislature on Thursday. The great mass of appropriation bills have passed both branches and are now in the hands of Governor Stuart. The general appropriation bill will pass the senate on Monday and be sent back to the house for concurrence in the senate amendments. The house has refused to concur in the senate amendments to 50 appropriation bills and conference committees will be appointed to adjust the differences of the two bodies.

The senate calendar is in such shape that that body can dispose of all but five bills, which are of second reading at the opening of the session. The Dunmore railroad commission is on second reading and will probably pass the senate finally on Tuesday and be sent back to the house for concurrence in the amendments. Among the important bills on the senate calendar for third reading are those to enforce article seventeen of the Constitution; the trolley eminent domain bill; allowing trolley companies to diverge their routes and to extend the period during which their bonds shall be paid.

The bill fixing the minimum salaries of school teachers, changing the system of fixing the tax on trust companies, placing foreign bonding companies under the control of the state banking department, fixing the salaries of poor directors, giving electric light, heat and power companies the right of eminent domain, and the anti-bucket shop are all on the calendar for third reading. All of these bills have passed the house.

Among the many bills held up by the senate committee are the employers' liability bill, the bill taxing public service corporations for local purposes, taxing manufacturing corporations, the anti-vaccination bill, the anti-discrimination and "trust busting" bills, and three bills fixing the hours of labor and the basis of wages in the anthracite regions.

The soldiers' pension bill will be taken up by the house for third reading on Monday night. This bill, if it should pass, will go back to the senate for concurrence in the house amendments. There is apparently no organized opposition to the bill, and its advocates believe it will become a law. It provides penalties for all Pennsylvania soldiers in the Civil war from $5 to $10 a month, according to the term of service.

The senate and house will meet at 1 o'clock this afternoon and will be in session almost continuously until the final adjournment on Thursday noon. The governor has 30 days in which to dispose of the bills now in his hands and which may be sent him this week. It is conceded that it will be necessary to reduce the amounts in many of the appropriation bills in order to keep within the estimated state revenues.

HOPE TO SOLVE RIDDLE

New York, May 13.—The riddle of the planet Mars may be brought nearer solution by the Lowell expedition, headed by Prof. Todd of Amherst college, now on route to South America where, high in the peaks of the Andes photographs of the mysterious planet will be taken through a mammoth telescope by a specially constructed camera.

Mars inhabited and are those strange markings which radiate in seeming design from the polar caps, where the supposed Martian seas exist, artificial or natural? These questions are the astronomical problems which the little expedition led by Prof. David Todd, which has just sailed for South America on the steamship Panama, hope to answer, at least in part. Prof. Todd is accompanied by his wife, who also is an astronomer, and with them is a photographer, a mechanic, and an Amherst student.

Blood Pumped From Body. Chicago, May 13.—Almost every drop of blood was drawn from the body of Engineer Walter Hunter when his leg was caught in a suction pipe while working in Armour & Co.'s power plant. A post mortem showed that Hunter's heart was shriveled up. His lungs were flat and empty, and there was scarcely any trace of blood in the organs of the body. The suction of the pipe was so great that four other employees were unable to release Hunter. The examination by the physicians showed that several arteries in Hunter's leg had been broken by the suction.

Sunbury, Pa., May 13.—Men operating a coal digger in the north branch of the Susquehanna river near here, dug up a human head in a badly decomposed condition. The head had been severed from the body close to the chin by a sharp instrument and both sides of the face contained several stab wounds. It is believed the head belongs to a body which was found in the river near here several months ago in a sack.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE good news was broken to Claire by her father in the dead of night. She had thus some hours in which to prepare for what he was resolved should be her last conversation with Daintree on the subject of Tom. And she anticipated not only the last, but the riskiest of many risky interviews. She felt that ineffable relief might prove harder to conceal than intolerable anxiety, and so no sooner were her worse fears dissipated than new fears took their place.

She went for a ride with Daintree, and he worried her more than ever. It was a heavenly June day, but luscious fields and a gorgeous sky were nothing to the postmaster. His own rhymes thereon at once usurped and exhausted the subject. A volume of his verse was in the press; every slight sound or word suggested a quotation. Claire tried hard to think of all that he had done. She found herself thinking of Tom instead and in sheer depression turned early homeward.

With the new year came ill tidings from Australia. An investment had turned out badly. Daintree's interests in general were suffering from his absence. The very next day Daintree had Claire Harding into her father's library and, even with his face in happy fumes, struck an attitude before the writing table.

"Ebe is mine!" he cried. "She has consented to share the poet's days, to divide with Beau his inheritance in the wilderness!"

It was notable that no consent was asked of Nicholas Harding. He sat back in his chair, with a satisfied smile, and Daintree never forgot how his hands felt as he took both of hers and drew her toward him.

"But you spoke of sailing at once," said he, checking eagerness with an air of extreme deprecation. "It would have to be a very hurried affair."

The first cloud crossed Daintree's face.

"Ah, no!" said he. "I could not take her at a moment's notice to a house unfit for her reception. I must go and prepare it for her. That is a stern necessity. But you must bring her out to me yourself in six months' time."

"Mr. Harding shook his head. He was a public man."

"Then Lady Storkle must!"

Mr. Harding spoke warmly and unhesitatingly in favor of immediate marriage, to no purpose, however. They had indeed made up their minds, though the reason was not that which Daintree had given. Vanity forbade him to disclose the real reason. It was her solitary but firm stipulation, and so much for his brave desire to get first to Sydney on Claire's account.

He was to sail in seven days.

Meanwhile the engagement was announced in the Morning Post of Jan. 15.

On the 16th Mr. Harding found a note from Sir Emilius at his office:

Sir—My Morning Post informs me that a marriage has been arranged between your daughter and my son. You care for the young lady's happiness, you will put a stop to this at once. Yours faithfully,

N. B.—I send this word of warning in duplicate, both to your city and to your private address, and I feel hardly likely that you will receive both copies if my son is still with you.

Mr. Harding started to his feet. He had not received the copy posted to his house. Was the father's star the one something worse? The father's reputation—star!

It was the son.

He had been down before Mr. Harding that morning. The latter had found him in the dining room when he entered, and on his own plate were such letters as he had received. Harding seized the letter, but, having reflected, changed color and took a pen in hand. The note which he subsequently dispatched by hand was a model of firmness, tempered by tact. He demanded, however, an immediate explanation of Sir Emilius Daintree's words, and the messenger was to wait for an answer.

Then Mr. Harding called in person. Sir Emilius was not at home.

But next morning there was another brief note at the office:

Dear Sir—I have been thinking the matter over. I have my sympathy, but I do not enter into details, absolutely, in the least. A word should be enough for the law, or you may go for your explanation to my son, who will tell you it is all my apple. It is for you as a man of the world to believe or to disbelieve him on that point. I will say, however, that for as I know my son is not insane, I would to heaven he were! Yours, etc.,

EMILIUS DAINTREE.

Mr. Harding was now a miserable man. The very night of the betrothal had become an hourly agony, yet he lacked either the courage or the will to interfere. Only four days remained. He called again on Sir Emilius Daintree, but again the baronet was invisible.

This time Harding left an urgent note, and yet another perfectly civil one awaited him in the city next morning. It was to be the last, however, and said so plainly in the following terms:

My Dear Sir—You must excuse my unwillingness to see you or to correspond further upon this little matter of my son and your daughter. You will understand that the subject is probably more painful to me than to you, who have your remedy at hand. My son need never become your son-in-law, but unhappily he will always be my son.

Your last question is, however, a fair one, and I will answer it frankly on condition it is the last. So far as I am aware, then, my son has not already or (to my knowledge) has he ever had a wife. I should say he is quite capable of having half a dozen. However, this is not "at all." And I must beg you as a gentleman not to question me any further upon what is in fact a family matter and one only named to you in confidence for your own satisfaction.

Upon this understanding I have the honor to remain, sir, your obedient servant.

EMILIUS DAINTREE.

Mr. Harding held his tongue, and James Daintree sailed away the betrothed of Claire Harding, who was to follow him to Sydney in six months.

A year earlier Mr. Harding might have been tempted to keep silence for worldly reasons, for the sake of the connection—his daughter, Lady Daintree, was so forth. It was not himself a man of noble blood, but he loved the nobility and had of late very nearly cut himself off from their smile forever.

The temptation, on worldly grounds alone, would have been strong enough the year before. Yet the father's heart would have resisted it. He would have spoken out then and acted, too. Like an honest man. Now he did neither, because his man's was stopped, and he was bound by a stronger thing than social considerations. He was gagged and bound by abject fear.

And this was why Daintree the younger was allowed to sail away betrothed to Claire toward the latter end of January, 1888.

CHAPTER XV.

THE capital sentence on the convict, Sir Emilius having been commuted to one of transportation for life, he was transported to New South Wales, where he arrived, in the official phrase, per Seahorse, in the early morning of Tuesday, Dec. 6, 1887.

Some nineteen weeks before, still earlier in the morning, his draft had been chained together in gangs of six and marched from Melbourne across the road and down the stone steps to the tug, which conveyed them to the convict ship then lying at the wharf.

The voyage was not the worst of Tom's experiences. The first few days they were all in chains, and his leg became excoriated through dragging the metal harness in and out of his hammock, but presently the surgeon superintendent, who employed him privately during a great part of the passage, this officer was in absolute command of the convicts, and to Tom he was very kind indeed—so much so that at the very end of the voyage Tom asked the other to take his word between themselves that he was innocent. He never asked this of any man again. And the lovely harbor with the verdant shores said no more to his stinging soul than that of the most harrowed fowl in the ship.

The exiles were landed and marched to Hyde Park barracks, 200 strong. It was quite early in the forenoon, yet the heat of the ground struck him hardly when he stepped out of the ship, and the hot land smell scorched their nostrils, as the ungrudging detachment proceeded along the streets, all roving eyes and lurching sea legs. Suddenly the air filled with a jingle as of innumerable bells, and around a corner came a team of twenty men in a gray and red uniform, and these made the mournful music wherever they went. One of the soldiers in charge of the newly landed draft chanced to catch Tom's eye flashing misery and defiance. "Don't you trouble your head about that convict," he said to his own fault, "you follow if ever you come to that. There's none on you need."

Tom said nothing, but a convict near him called out: "I believe you, general! We've come out here to enjoy ourselves, and that's what we mean to do."

"And will, too!" said the soldier. "There's plenty of us chaps who would change shoes with you if we could," he added below his breath. "And when servants is in demand than ever, and a good 'un gets wages just the same as a free man. You'll all be snapped up before you've been in barracks a day. No, this ain't them. This is the 'hospital. There's the barracks, around the corner to the left."

A high wall enclosed the somber pile, which looked the more sinister against that sky of unfathomable blue. In moderate sunlight and the tantalizing proximity of the governor's pleasure grounds put a point to the ominous contrast, and there were misgivings among those bold spirits that had looked forward to New South Wales as a land of exclusive cakes and ale.

"If there's going to shut us up in there," said one to another, "we might as well have stayed where we was in blessed old Noogah!"

"I tell you they won't keep you above a day," resumed the soldier. "And you'll never see the place again unless you plays the fool and gets turned into a man. Then as does that comes back, of course, and has had time of it too. Hear that! Hear that!"

Over the wall as the newcomers marched down one side of it there came from the other a series of shrill screams, and as they reached the gate it was flung open, and out marched four men carrying a coffin. The white face was turned to the sky, the naked trunk writhing in agony, and the blood was running out of the man's boots as though he had been wading naked deep in it, while his leg from yank clanking from his legs.

"Aha!" said the soldier. "That's a Tom fool who's got turned into government, you see! They're carrying 'im across to the 'hospital, 'cause the cat's been scratching of 'im."

"The cat!" cried Tom, who was trembling all over.

"Ay, my lad; the one with nine tails. 'Tis the commonest breed out here."

Tom never knew how his legs carried him through the barrack gates, and when the draft were drawn up within and formally addressed there by the deputy governor he caught but little of the harangue. He felt dazedly sick; his heart ached like a tooth, and for hours to come those piercing screams pursued his thinking. However, he supposed the punishment must have been timed expressly as a salutary warning for the newcomers. Devoutly he hoped so, but he soon knew better.

Next morning there were two flagging, and one again the morning after. It was, in fact, a daily detail at the Hyde Park barracks, which were, on the other hand, the headquarters of several hundreds of the most desperate felons in New South Wales. Tom and his draft were only to remain there until assigned into private service, but the last had all been "turned into government" as unmanageable by their masters and were in barracks for punishment. Their days were spent in road gangs or in other organized labor about the town, and not a few of their nights in depositions wrinkled at by the barrack officers.

For the corruption of the place was as flagrant as the discipline was harsh. The very first night, when Tom was driven from his hammock by the fabled heat of the overcrowded dormitory, he witnessed an instructive incident from a dreary and the division of his spirit with the officer on duty. Tom soon learned that burglaries and highway robberies were nightly occurrences in Sydney, and it was often the work of convicts under nominal lock and key as that of the assigned servants who infested the streets after dark.

Meanwhile he was himself assigned to a resident in urgent quest of a "special" or "sentimental convict," as Tom was termed. The applicant was a genial graybeard, with a philosophic eye, which looked Tom well up and down at their interview.

"What I want," said he, "is a tutor for my son. I hear you are a university man. May I ask what makes you stare?"

rather than by their crimes as felons. Such was Tom's comforting reflection, for not yet did he realize how entirely the condition of the convict was dependent upon the character of the master; but, having had one good master, though for so brief a period, he looked cheerfully for another.

The other, however, was slow to come. His false start seemed to tell against Tom with the authorities. They were in no hurry to assign him again, and presently he found himself the last man of his draft in the barracks, with his hammock the only one tawing between the stanchions of the great dormitory upstairs. Then one morning he heard a row in the yard, and there was a very overdressed, thickest and thickest spoken young man abusing the officers because there were no convicts left.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Tea Drinking in China. Chinese all drink tea, and it is due to this fact that they drink little water, and thus keep down the rate of mortality. Tea to a rich Chinaman means concentrated tea, costing ten cents an ounce; to the poor, it is hot water with a few leaves dipped in; and to the very poor, simply hot water. It is significant of the increased wealth in the country that the majority of the lower classes, who heretofore could only afford hot water, are now indulging in actual tea.

Battle for Life. When Despair Seemed All That Was Left, He Strives and Finally Wins Health.

The experience of R. H. Lewis of 61 Second Street, Cleveland, N. Y., who was given up by his doctors to die of consumption, and who has now been restored to health by the use of Dr. J. C. Greiner's medicine, is a story which will be of interest to all who are suffering from this terrible disease.

Mr. Lewis lost 21 pounds in three months, had hemorrhages, and a consultation of physicians gave the verdict that he had consumption, and one lung was nearly gone, and he returned from visits to the Adirondack and Catskill Mountains so weak that he could hardly get about. It was at this stage that he began to use Dr. J. C. Greiner's medicine, the guaranteed cure for throat and lungs. Now he is able to return to work after two years' illness and he gives all the credit to Dr. J. C. Greiner's medicine.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce. LADIES' HOME JOURNAL.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel, seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1906) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with the great black display heading, which never saw the humble, grooving retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the standard and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of women's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $200,000 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Dr. Bok, the editor, had previously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business, furthermore, that no alcohol, or other harmful ingredients, were contained in his medicine, and that his medicine was made from pure medicinal roots and herbs, and was entirely harmless.
